Breakout week

Market performance

The market recorded its second consecutive week of gains, showing several positive signals with strong breakout sessions.

Chart: Breakout week

In the short term, the VNIndex confirmed its upward trend by forming two trend-continuation patterns.

The first is a triangle pattern, formed by the index's highs and lows from Aug to Oct, with a breakout session recorded on Oct 6, 2025. As a continuation pattern, the price target is measured based on the previous upward movement. Accordingly, the target range for this pattern is 1,850-1,900 points.

The second is a rectangle pattern, identified using closing prices of the highs and lows from Aug to Sep 2025. A breakout signal appeared on Oct 9, 2025, with a price target equivalent to the height of the pattern, or around 1,800 points.

→ The market has confirmed a short-term uptrend. Therefore, investors may consider opening new positions this week, focusing on leading stocks.

Technical strategy: Maintain current equity allocation

In this context, investors may maintain their existing equity holdings and consider increasing exposure during consolidation phases to strengthen portfolio performance.
