

Liquidity drops sharply ahead of the holiday

VN30 performance

The VN30 Index recorded a corrective session as profit-taking pressure emerged ahead of the extended public holiday. The index declined 0.91% to close at 2,022 points, with losses led by VIC (-5.10%), VHM (-3.31%), TCB (-2.17%), and SAB (-2.06%). On the positive side, capital flow moved into VRE (+4.87%), LPB (+3.73%), DGC (+2.49%), GAS (+2.31%), and GVR (+2.12%).

VN30 Future chart: Liquidity drops sharply ahead of the holiday

The market displayed a cautious tone, with price action confined to a narrow range and small-bodied candlestick - a pattern reinforced by a sharp drop in trading volume. The primary driver was investor apprehension ahead of the long weekend holiday.

This week, the futures contract requires additional signals to confirm the next directional trend. That said, the market bias leans bullish, as the contract continued to close above both the 10-period and 20-period moving averages, with the 10-period MA having crossed above the 20-period MA.

Furthermore, the contract already reached the price target derived from the previously confirmed rectangle pattern, with that target set near the 2,050-point zone.

In the next session, the 2,050-point area will serve as key short-term resistance, while the 1,940-1,950-point zone will act as strong support.

Technical strategy

Traders sentiment remained cautious as trading volume stayed low during the final session before the holiday break. As a result, traders are advised to exercise prudence at this stage and wait for clear trend confirmation signals before re-entering positions.
